Savings Bonds Chairman Joins National Campaign

United States Savings Bonds, though young in years, already have served four generations of Americans and offer opportunity for generations yet unborn.

This was the observation today of Mr. T. DeWitt Evans, Savings Bond Chairman, as volunteer workers here and elsewhere in the state joined in the launching of Operation Security, a nationwide effort to focus greater attention on the role of Savings Bonds in building security for families, communities and the country.

Pointing to the $138 billion worth of Series E. and H. Savings Bonds sold since May 1941, Mr. Evans said that no other financial program has had a greater impact upon the people of the United States.

"Of this great backlog of individual savings, more than $90 billion worth have been converted during the intervening years into new homes, new cars, tractors and other equipment, and have used to educate children and provide comfort in retirement years.

"These dollars have served grandfathers, fathers, children and now their children during this short span of years."

"Yet, perhaps the most significant feature of this great thrift program is that more than $47 billion in Series E and H. Savings Bonds still are outstanding and ready to provide the same security and opportunity for the present and future generations."
